

I live in a suburb of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, I do not have the advantage of XM's local weather and traffic reports, yet. I travel at least 40 minutes to and from work daily and would benefit from this service greatly. By cutting it off now, when it's only in the major cities would be a tremendous detriment to the free market economy the country is based on. The local radio stations owned by various corporations, especially the AM talk radio only offer hit or miss weather and traffic reports, which are basically useless because you are in the traffic jam by the time AM or FM reports it. To inhibit XM and protect the antiquated AM and FM traffic reporting would put a serious dent in XM's ability to maintain its profitability.

Loyal XM subscriber, for 2 years

Nicholas Weissenborn